

Young Standard Poodle

Standard Poodles are a smart, active and graceful breed. You should also know they can be predisposed to the following ailments. Examinations twice a year and routine diagnostics to catch problems early, when they are easiest to treat, are recommended for the life of your dog.

Dilated Cardiomyopathy

Description

Dilated cardiomyopathy is a disease where the heart becomes enlarged, weaker and thinner. It eventually cannot effectively pump blood and can lead to heart failure. Some Poodles also develop heart arrhythmias (disturbances in the rate and rhythm of the heart beat).

Early Detection

Recommended: an annual blood pressure check, electrocardiogram, chest x-rays and sometimes an ultrasound of the heart (echocardiogram).

Why Needed

Dilatative cardiomyopathy can contribute to:

- Weakness
- Fainting
- Labored breathing or coughing
- Gradual heart failure
- Sudden death

Gastric Dilatation and Volvulus

Description

Gastric dilatation and volvulus is when the stomach fills with fluid and gas and then twists on itself. It is also called bloat. This can cut off the blood supply to the stomach and spleen.

Warning Signs

There is no early detection for this disorder. Deep-chested dogs, like Poodles, are much more likely to develop this disorder. Look for signs of dry heaving, grunting, restlessness or distress, and/or a bulging of the abdomen.

Why Important

Gastric dilatation and volvulus is an emergency situation and often fatal if not treated very quickly. Rush to our hospital or an animal emergency clinic immediately if signs are noticed.

Preventive Measures

The best thing to do is to feed your dog 2-3 smaller meals a day instead of one large one, and to avoid strenuous exercise right after eating. There is a surgery (prophylactic gastropexy) that can be performed that limits the stomach's ability to twist. Discuss this option with your veterinarian.

Glaucoma

Description

Glaucoma is a very painful condition in which fluid in the eye cannot drain as fast as it is being produced, leading to excessive pressure. The pressure crushes the lining of the retina.

Early Detection

Recommended: comprehensive exams twice a year, intraocular pressure check.

Why Needed

Glaucoma can contribute to:

- Extreme pain
- Squinting
- Watery, irritated eyes
- Swollen or bulging eyes
- Blindness
